SCHOOL CALENDAR

FROM THE PRINCIPAL

Dear members of the Lisieux community,

Next week is National Reconciliation Week, with the theme for 2022 being “Be Brave. Make Change.” It is a challenge to Australians to show courage and tackle the unfinished business of reconciliation for the benefit of all Australians. Students have been engaging in a range of classroom activities to deepen their understanding of our shared history and achievements, and how we can all contribute to achieving reconciliation in Australia.

Congratulations to the 13 students who represented Lisieux in the Bellarine Division Cross Country on Tuesday: Arlo Baranski, Ruby Barrett, Isabella Bradbury, Archie Begg, Eddie Byrne, Justin Cayzer, Shari Furness, Kobe Leach, Harry Maw, Jackson Molloy, Maximus Sefton, Maeve Timms, Illara Topic. A great effort was shown by all.

Our Year 5/6 students have been participating in the SEA Living and Growing program over the past few weeks. The topics include physical, social and emotional changes of puberty; respect for self and others; and, key messages on 'body safety.' The feedback from both students and parents has been extremely positive and I would like to commend our senior students on the maturity and responsibility they have demonstrated through their engagement in the program.

This week we have posted enrolment offers to 50 local families for Prep 2023. Once again, we have received more applications than we are able to offer places to, and we will maintain a wait list for those families who did not receive a first round offer. It is always a special part of my role to meet incoming students during enrolment interviews and to witness their excitement for the next stage of their learning journey.

God's blessings for the week ahead,

Susan Ryan

Jen and Leon wish to thank the Lisieux school community for their support and prayers during their son Campbell's recent illness and neurosurgery. With the amazing care of the Royal Children's Hospital Campbell returned home a few weeks ago and continued to make improvements with Hospital in the Home care. Campbell has now started transitioning back to Lisieux and is enjoying reconnecting with friends, teachers and school staff. His family really appreciate the warm welcome back from teachers and families. Campbell is looking forward to getting back to the soccer field in the coming months. Thanks again.

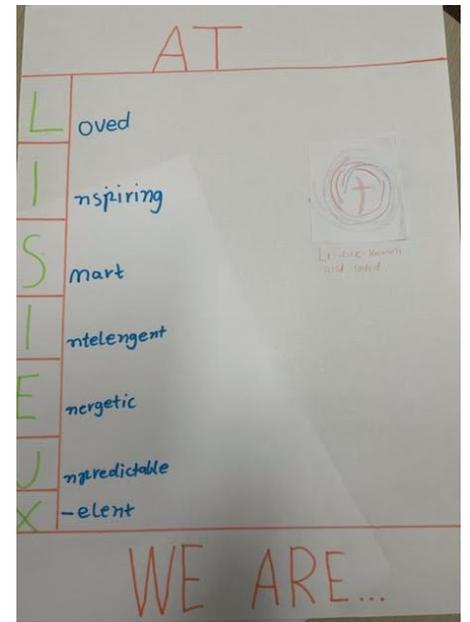

PRAYER

Lord, open up our hearts so that we may hear the message you teach of a world in which the wrongs of the past are recognised- a world in which a reconciled people walk and talk together sharing stories; a world in which all burn with the same desire to have your peace and justice reign. Amen.

STUDENT LEARNING & ACHIEVEMENTS

How to raise culturally aware kids

ABC Everyday / By Samantha Turnbull

Kirby Barker knows that racism is learned, but she counters that by teaching preschoolers to be kind.

"No-one is born full of hate," she says. "So it's really important for adults to set a great example and show love, kindness and respect to anyone you encounter through your life."

Kirby, 25, is a Bandjalang woman and early childhood educator dedicated to encouraging reconciliation in children under five.

She works at a preschool in Woodburn, northern New South Wales, where she teaches Bandjalang language and runs a bush classroom to help students connect to country.

To mark National Reconciliation Week, Kirby shares her advice for raising culturally aware and compassionate kids from birth.

Celebrate difference

Kirby says children recognise difference such as skin colour or speech. For grown-ups in their life, the key is to talk about diversity as a positive.

"I say things like we're all a little bit different," Kirby says. "We all have a different story, and a different language and interesting ways of being."

She says it's also important to explain there is diversity within Indigenous Australia.

"The Aboriginal countries map of Australia is a great place to start to open that conversation that we're not just one type of people," Kirby says.

"And it's important to know that if you speak to one Aboriginal person they don't speak for all Aboriginal people."

Talk about and meet traditional owners

Kirby encourages the use of the term 'traditional owners' — that's how she describes herself and her family's relationship to the land she lives on.

She says if you want to break down what that means to little kids, you can say:

"Traditional owners are local families who have lived here for thousands of years — before there were towns, before there were shops."

The best thing you can do is meet some of the traditional owners in your region and ask them about their connection to country.

"Ask who their mob is or what their background is," Kirby says.

"Sometimes you have to be a bit more sensitive as some people might not know where they're from due to the Stolen Generations, so it's always important not to be too pushy if they don't want to tell you.

"But, most of the time, Aboriginal people are happy to share their stories and want people to hear them — they're stories that have been told for thousands of years and they deserve to be heard. So don't be afraid."

Explaining reconciliation

Kirby says racism is a strong word to use around preschoolers, but they will sense sorrow and injustice.

When talking about the need for reconciliation, Kirby says we should be honest.

"We can start when children are young to teach the truth about the history of Australia," she says.

"You can say: 'Many years ago, before you were born, the government at the time took away Aboriginal children and some of them never made it back to their families and it's caused a lot of sadness.'

"Think about the feeling behind your words. Take time to sit with it.

"It can be uncomfortable but it's important to talk about because we never want something like that to happen again."

Seek out Indigenous stories

Kirby says there are plenty of resources like books, videos and podcasts based on dreaming and Indigenous creation stories that carers can share with children.

She personally recommends Play School and ABC podcast Little Yarns which explores the diverse languages, stories and countries of Indigenous Australia.

Learn some Indigenous language

Kirby also suggests making an effort to learn some of the Indigenous language from your area.

If you don't know how to do that, your local schools, neighbourhood centres or land councils may be able to point you in the right direction.

"Learning language is a way of connecting to land and community, and it can make local Aboriginal people feel really comfortable and welcomed in their community," Kirby says.

"Even if people just pick up a couple of words here and there. It's a great way to get to know people and also to keep those languages alive."

Ask yourself: 'How would I feel?'

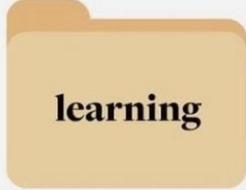

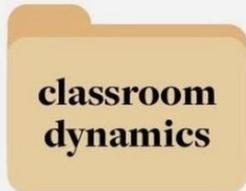

Finally, Kirby says to constantly remind our kids to practise empathy.

"Treat everyone how you would like to be treated," she says.

"Put yourself in someone else's shoes and think about what would make you feel comfortable or uncomfortable.

"It's all about establishing trust and building relationships."

What to say to your kid instead of "how was school?"

 feelings	Did anything make you feel happy today? Did anything make you feel sad today? Tell me about one thing you did today that made you feel proud (and why).
 friendships	Who made you laugh today? Who did you play with? Is there someone you want to be friends with but aren't yet?
 learning	Can you teach me a song you sang? Tell me about a story you read/listened to. Tell me something you know today that you didn't know yesterday.
 classroom dynamics	What games did you play at recess? What are you most looking forward to tomorrow? Did you see anyone being kind/unkind today?

Outdoor Discovery Reminder

Winter is almost here! And haven't we started to feel that chilly breeze building over the last week or two? As we head into Winter, a reminder that we do not believe in "bad" weather here at Lisieux Primary. We must, however, dress adequately and be prepared for all types of weather, because we will be going outdoors on Wednesdays for Outdoor Discovery rain or shine (Year 1/2) and Fridays for Preps.

Please remember to check the weather and bring extra clothing for Outdoor Discovery Day - beanies, gum boots, extra socks, wear another layer underneath, a warm outer jacket, maybe even gloves. We can't let the weather stop us from exploring, so please be prepared.

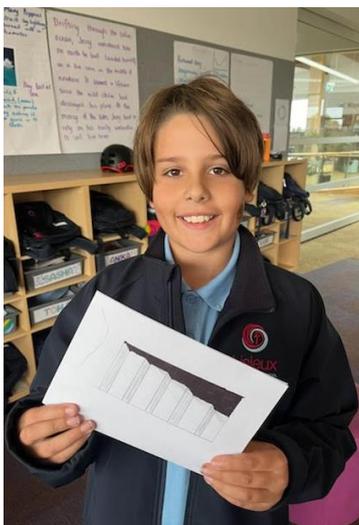

A reminder to families that smart watches are not permitted at Lisieux. Despite some children owning a smart watch, our school policy is that they may not be worn at school for a range of reasons, including privacy and safety issues. They also cause distraction in the classroom. We ask that families ensure Lisieux children do not wear smart watches to school, even if set to school mode and advise that any such device brought to school will be held in safe-keeping at Reception and will need to be collected at the end of the school day.
